How THE DAYS OF THE WEEK GOT

THEIR NAMES.

The days of the week were each sacred to a certain deity; Sunday and Monday
to the sun and moon respectively; Tuesday to the god of war, Wednesday to the god of war, Thursday to the god of thunder, Friday to the god of love, Saturday to the god of liberty. From which last I suppose has descended the custom of observing that day as a holiday, and which I am thankful to say, is pretty fully kept by all who can afford the needful relaxation, with one remarkable exception, namely, those who follow the useful craft of shoemaking. It is well known that they favor Monday as their day of recreation,
which custom is said to have had
its origin in the time of Oliver Cromwell. The story is that one of his generals, named Monday,
committed suicide.

A CURIOSITY.—We were shown
last evening by Mr. John Mitchell, one of the owners of the original Revenue, a curiosity recently obtained from that mine. In taking out the vein a large piece of ore
of remarkable richness, was thrown out, on breaking which a small
boulder rolled out of its matrix,
of the size and shape of a medium
mineral, Reese River Reville.

SHERMAN ON BUTLER.—General
Sherman in a letter recently written to a Southern friend, which has got into print, denies certain imputations connecting himself with the secession movement, and
adds:
"I wish the South well, and if I have been a scourge, then how much better that it was I than Ben-Butler, or some other of that school!"

A COUNTRY exchange says: "In the piece on our fourth page, entitled, 'We must not lag behind,'
instead of the line, 'That moulds
its dirty shirt,' please read,
'That moulds its dirty shirt.'"

Notice.
I hereby give notice that the partnership between existing between Ellsbridge Gurney and David F. Beals, under the name of Gurney & Co., was dissolved on the 25th day of October, 1885, by the death of Mr. Ellsbridge Gurney, one of the members of said firm. The business of said firm at Nevada and Idaho, in the Territory of Montana, at Great Salt Lake City, in the Territory of Utah; and at Idaho
City, in the Territory of Idaho, is discontinued.
No contracts entered into in the territories advised, at any time hereafter in the name of, and for the old or new firm, will be valid unless made with our agent, F. C. BROWN, or with the undersigned. All persons having claims against the said firm, will present them at our office for payment.

I shall continue the business in which the late firm was engaged, at the same place, under the name of Gurney & Co., and shall supply of the houses we have discontinued, with our goods as before. The style of the new firm will continue to be Gurney & Co.

THE TERRITORIAL CENTRE

THURSDAY, FEB. 20, 1886.
SALT LAKE CITY.

The citizens who are early risers may almost any morning see persons in the form of men—but with few of manhood's proud attributes and lofty sentiments, or they could not bring themselves to submit to the degradation—shaking hands from the menial and degrading service of guarding the harem of the chief degrader of woman in Utah, while the grand Bashaw slumbers in that unhallowed place where crushed hearts are imprisoned, and woman's fond aspirations blighted. Is not that a depth of servile infamy, of cringing humiliation, to which it is difficult to believe that the descendants of the proud, dominant white race could ever have been brought? yet so it is. The religious system of the arch impostor is beginning to bear its fruit. From too many of its victims the last trace of manhood seems to have been defaced. Is what enlightened christian men, with a true sense of their relation and responsibilities, see in this infamy and intolerable wrong, they see elevation and glory. Foreigners, was it not a crushing infliction to you in the Fatherland, to be compelled to guard the despotic kings and emperors whom you hated, and whose rule was grinding to your souls? And yet you here submit to an infinitely deeper degradation, a more revolting servitude, where there is no compulsion, but the will of a tyrant whom you may spurn. If the proudest and most despotic of the European kings or emperors attempted to degrade the poorest peasant girls in his empire, by devoting them to vile and nasty uses, as the hoary prophet systematically degrades the fair daughters of Utah, he would be hurled from his throne by the volcanic renaissance of an uprising people, driven, like the vile Turkin, to "everlasting banishment." How then are you fallen from manhood's proud estate, when you not only give the aged voluptuary of the Lion House your daughters and sisters, to minister to his vile passions, as concubines, but guard and watch him while he pollutes your race and damns your name to infamy? What more is needed to consummate the self-inflicted shame, and to cast you without the pale of freedom, but to place the badge of serfdom on your necks, brazen collars, with this inscription, "B'tigha m's Thrali." Foreigners, pause and reason, and if you are not fallen beyond hope of redemption, a wild and burning indignation will fill your hearts, that pretenders could ever have so degraded even the poorest and most neglected children of Europe. Instead of finding a home, you have found a place of bondage. You have yourselves to blame. Why do you not now think and act like men? Call no man master. If one lingering spark of manhood yet remains to light up the ruin wrought in your hearts by priestly tyrants and to reveal the mournful wrecks of character and hope, reflect in the dark night watches, when guarding the slumbers of the man who despises you and who is doing what he can to destroy you, and to entail nameless miseries and sorrows on your children, reflect to what position you have brought yourselves and your families. Did God Almighty design for you no nobler destiny, than to be the despised and dishonored slaves, that you are, compelled, by superstitious fears, and groundless hopes, to watch through the long night at the door of your master or like kenneled dogs, stiffly catching, snatches of miserable sleep, in the anti-chamber or out houses of the harem. Is that the proud duty, to which the American-born impostor can devote the children of Europe? Infinitely better, then, had it been for you, and for your children, had you remained under the rule of the foreign despots, but is this your only election? Have you sold yourself for nought? Have you none of the aspirations of glorious freedom? We know hundreds of your countrymen, who would submit to the fiery tortures of martyrdom, rather than to your humiliation. They are everywhere building up glorious homes, in the fair domains of the republic. Do you know, that in secret, you are mocked, and despised by the vulgar and impure American, whom you have been taught to regard as your prophet? From your crushing toil, by his false representations, you have enriched him and his numerous children and dependents. He has his farms, mills, houses, whiskey saloons, but you are poor, your children neglected, and your wives care-worn and depressed. The future is to you, a future of toil. The tithing system is an eternal tax, and curse to you. And to crown all, to convince you, if any lingering doubt should remain, that you are owned by Brigham, body and soul, your labor here and your hopes of the hereafter. Ever and again, you must give up your rest, to guard his polluted chambers, to quiet his guilty fears. What more can tyrannical demand of you? And why the necessity, for such a guard? Is the prophet afraid that some desperate spirit will attempt to put his own teachings into practice upon himself, and shed his blood to save him from his fearful crimes? The advocate of consummation, does he dream of death of known complicity? Has he sown a troop of fiends, that will not soon "down at his bidding?" Does he long that he will be devoured by his own offspring? Is he the friend and of action, who is infamously and treacherously, and who have those who are not to be cast off? Do visions of the scenes of blood—his spirit inspired, and his teachings justified—haunt him with their gory horrors, converting his harem into a hell, where murdered victims mock him, beckoning him to a tribunal, where justice will vindicate the innocent and avenge the slain? Do the frantic shrieks of glorious womanhood and tender girlhood, while shrinking from the knife of his assassins, disturb his slumbers depriving him of sweet sleep forever more? Do the forms of the fair, the beautiful, and the noble, the slain at "Mountain Meadow," appear to him with disheveled locks, and gaping wounds, and dishonored bodies, and wildly gleaming eyes,—as in the dread hour of their most barbarous sacrifice,—telling him of a day of retribution, when their trampled blood shall no longer "cry to God from the ground," by stern and awful justice, in the majesty of the republic, it will be avenged, and appeased? Is it the living or the dead he fears? In either case how unavailing his guard? What power can shield him from crime or save him from its fiery inflictions? Can the waters of the ocean wash from his soul the damned spot? Can his hoarded millions, the gleanings of nameless lies, and infamous practices, the fruits of a people's unrequited toil, robbed from the poor and the needy, from little neglected children and poor oppressed women, purchase for him one moment's respite from the inflictions of that retribution, that with the tread of destiny is hastening on? The Lion of the Lord! The prophet of God, what does he fear? Are there those whom he discarded and trampled on, or their avengers yet living, whom he fears? The innocent have no fear, O! prophet of evil! Why call thyself the Lion of the Lord, and yet in all thy movements thou dost proclaim thy coward heart, thy guilty, trembling soul? What!

"Thou wear the Lion hide! dost it for shame,
And hang a calf's skin on those recreant limbs!"

Washington, Feb. 20.

The Senate Committee have favorably reported on the bill granting lands to construct a railroad and telegraph from Placerville, California, to a point on the Pacific Railroad in Nevada; also granting lands for a railroad and telegraph from San Francisco to Humboldt Bay; also a bill granting the right of way to the Humboldt Canal Company, through the public land in Humboldt county, Nevada; and the Cascade Railroad Company, through certain military reservations in Washington Territory.

The first thing in the Senate was that Wade offered a resolution to amend the Constitution, that the President shall be ineligible a second term.

Rumors say both Stanton and Harlan will resign in consequence of the veto.

In the House, this morning, Stevens from Joint Committee, reported a resolution that in order to close agitation on the question, which seems likely to disturb the action of Government, as well as to quiet uncertainty, which exists in the minds of the people of the eleven States declared in insurrection, no Senators or Representatives shall be admitted into Congress from either of said States, until Congress shall have declared such States entitled to such representation.

Upon this Stevens demanded the previous question, and much excitement followed, with dilatory motions and guerrilla tactics, to stave off the vote. Eldridge said if the other side would allow debate, his side would stop. Stevens replied he had sat here forty-eight hours when the rebels went out, and could now stand it thirty-six hours longer. Dilatory motions continued till 7.15 P. M., when the resolution passed 109 against 40. Adjourned.

The following are the ayes and noes in the Senate on the passage of the bill over the veto, yes, Anton R. Brown, Chandler, Clark, Conness, Gragin, Cresswell, Crittenden, Fowler, Grimes, Harris, Henderson, Howard, Howe, Kirkwood, Lane, of Indiana, Lane, of Kansas, Nye, Pollard, Pomeroy, Ramsay, Morrill, Sherman, Sprague, Sumner, Trumbull, Wade, Williams, Wilson, and Yates, 30; nayes, Baughman, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Doolittle, Guthrie, Hendricks, Johnson, McDougal, Morgan, Nesmith, Norton, Riddle, Saulsbury, Stewart, Stockton, Vanwinkle, and Wiley, 18. Absent Enote and Wright, 2. Except that the veto has demonstrated, there is not a two-third majority in the Senate, the President has gained nothing. A majority of thirty is against him, stronger than ever. The Reconstruction Committee, although prepared to report favorably the admission of Tennessee, postponed all action in the case, and it is doubtful if any Southern State will be admitted this Congress. Ben. Wade, in a speech yesterday, denounced the President, and said any one who would favor the admission of unwashed traitors to Congress was himself a traitor at heart.

HOUSE.

Washington, Feb. 20.

Ashley, of Ohio, yesterday introduced a bill, granting lands to the American Overland Drumery Express Company, along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, the whole amount not to exceed 40 quarter-sections, and the express line shall be running within a year.

The House Committee on Public Lands agreed to report an important bill, providing for the sale of mineral lands, after six months advertisement in the nearest paper, the lands thereafter remaining unsold to be open to private entry.

Section four provides for the appointment of a geologist in each land district; section five provides that the discoverer and worker of any mine or lead shall have the right to purchase at the minimum price; section six provided for a classification and appraisal of lands; no person is allowed to purchase more than 20 acres, nor enter a second tract without selling the first purchase to be by public auction; section seven provides that the President of the U. S. may lay off the mineral regions into assaying and mining districts, having reference to mines now established, and requires the mineral to be assayed and coined in said districts, under strict penalties; additional sections provide for the recognition of existing surveys or sub-divisions, when the convenience of settlers will be best consulted thereby. Julian will report the bill to the House.

GENERAL NEWS.

Washington, Feb. 20.

A miscellaneous crowd, headed by Judge Hughes, of Indiana, Green Clay Smith, and Geo. Francis Trala, with a band of music, surrounded the President last night in honor of his veto message. The President did not respond.

Last Saturday Gen. Grant issued an order, requiring military commanders in the South to report the names of newspapers having a pernicious influence, that the same might be suppressed. Yesterday the President, in effect, revoked the order by allowing the Richmond Examiner to resume publication.

The President's veto message is all the talk; the first remark of everybody was that the President did not write it; next a remark that the President had separated from the majority in Congress, and gone over to the other side. All Maiden, get it through your head. All that you need is a little more. Let not your parting cost. These a sign, or we are lost.

Go with Fashion's hollow train. Still to prize a loyal heart. If you value a loyal heart.

More than love, we part. Go! and when your heart has learned. How love flies the courtly door.

Learn that true affection, pursued. Drop it, and you are lost.

Perfection alone can bear with imperfection.

How on her heart. Taken from life.

A child thus defines gossip: "It's when you don't say anything, but you say it."

The greatest objection to those who mean well, is that they seldom find time to say but their intentions.

The faults and mistakes of us are being done by any other one thing.

A spirited young lady who was head, said she preferred his dollars to his sense.

A young man, when going to a woman without an invitation. "Don't be hard on them," was the reply; "if they only want where they were asked they will go anywhere."

Envy baddy can tell where lightning struck last, but it takes a smart man to find out where it is going to strike next time—this is one of the differences between a boy and a man.
